Technology enthusiast.

I appreciate spending time to learn more and more about any advancement that has been made in the tech world. While the average person would look at a device such as a phone or laptop casually, I would dive into the exact specifications of the device and look at it in an entirely different spectrum. I find it quite satisfying to know and understand the key components that build up a “fast and efficient” device. Through this I have learned quite a handful amount of information that I find quite entertaining and informative.

Hiking/ Outdoor activities.

As much as I do enjoy technology, I ever so appreciate the outdoors experience. I find it quite relating to go for hiking activities that familiarize myself with the outdoors and nature. I have hiking up MT. Longonot among others that I found quite rewarding. Another outdoor activity I find quite relaxing is sauntering, which is taking time to appreciate nature as it is in its element. I have also partaken in several teambuilding activities that I found quite fun.
